Civil Air Patrol appoints new cadet commander

On Aug. 16, the Gen. Jimmy Stewart Composite Squadron of the Civil Air Patrol celebrated the change of cadet command from 2nd Lt. Suzanna Mathews of Edison, to cadet Capt. Bryan Park of East Brunswick.

As cadet commander, Park will organize cadet operations and oversee cadet progress.

In addition to his command duties, Park also plays organized baseball, leads worship service with the youth congregation at his church and participates in Model United Nations.

The ceremony also included the following promotions and awards:

■ Serenity Fung of Kendall Park received the Mitchell Award and was promoted to second lieutenant.

■ Brain Cann of Sayreville received the Mitchell Award and was promoted to cadet second lieutenant.

■ Yashesvini Lanka of Plainsboro received the CAP Eaker Award and was promoted to cadet lieutenant colonel.

The Civil Air Patrol, a U.S. Air Force auxiliary, offers a cadet program that mentors teens interested in aviation, space or the military. For more information, go to www.gocivilairpatrol.com.

Scholarship is a real catch for linebacker

Antonio Lowery, starting linebacker for Rutgers University, got some help toward his criminal justice degree with the 2010 iXP Endowed Football Scholarship. The scholarship, reserved for full-time students on the Rutgers football team studying criminal justice, is part of a $100,000 pledge from iXP to the university.
